

Skull Biker Mask Assembly

There isn't much to show here as the project is pretty straightforward. As I mentioned on the pattern file, this is all about precision. So, I would not recommend punching stitching holes in both layers at the same time, I would transfer them from the pattern onto the leather and then carefully punch them on each layer individually for the max precision.

The thread for the skull will be almost too long to work with as the seam is very long but if you want to make it with one thread, it is possible. Start at the nostril (see image) then you will finish it at the other nostril and if you have thread left you can also stitch the notch together with the same thread.
